LLOYD GEORGE FAVORS PLAN WORLD PEACE

Says Acceptance of Hughes Proposition for Adjustment by International Committee Best Thing Doubtful of League

FORMER BRITISH PREMIER ARRIVES IN N. Y. TODAY

Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Unhappiness and difficulties are resulting from the war caused by improper or ineffective operation of the treaty of Versailles, David Lloyd George, former premier of Great Britain, declared upon his arrival here today on a tour of the United States. He did not "think the mischief was with the Versailles treaty. The trouble has been how it has been carried out." The most important factor which might lead towards settlement of central Europe's difficulties which he said were still grave, was the acceptance of Secretary Hages' proposition in his New Haven address that the situation now analyzed and adjusted by an international committee composed of composed of competent statesmen.

He said the League of Nations had been weakened by the Greco-Italian situation and settlement and that the league cannot be considered a going concern without participation of the United States.

The police broke up a parade of 20 middle-aged women carrying banners denouncing Great Britain and tore the banner into shreds. The incident occurred near the city hall, where thousands were gathered to greet the former premier.

STATIC, ETC., HINDERED RADIO PROGRAM LAST NIGHT

Tuneful snatches of vocal and instrumental melodies broadcasted at Louisville by utility employes were extracted from the ether last night, though the program, as received by the magnavox amplifier at the corner of Cumberland avenue and Twentieth street, consisted mainly of ear-splitting screeches and other harsh sounds common to radio receiving sets.

This morning Mr. Umberger explained the unsatisfactory results were due to the fact that a teamster who had brought a load of coal to his home had broken the antennae lead in which had allowed it to fall to the ground, rendering it useless. All signals picked up were caught by the radio frequency tube only. The radio-coupler was useless because of this. Mr. Umberger stated that he did not find out the reason until 9 o'clock this morning. He is now installing a new antenna to be used with his 10-watt transmitter. This will also answer for the receiver.

When this is ready it is the plan of Mr. Umberger to transmit other programs in the manner intended last night two or three times a week.

Early in program there was a prolonged popping and scratching which gradually merged into a speech, presumably that of L. B. Herrington, K. U. vice-president. The only audible words were a succession of "dams." Whether or not the speaker had reference to a power project is not known. A large crowd was present to hear the radio program.

REPUBLICANS PLAN WAYS TO GET VOTERS TO POLLS

An informal meeting of local Republican leaders was held at the city hall last night. H. H. Hutcheson, local chairman of the party, presided. Plans for getting every available vote for Dawson by rallying the Republicans to the polls and by doing "personal missionary work" among the Democrats to convert them to the Republican faith were discussed.

Every effort will be made to have the men and women register tomorrow or on the other registration days. Free conveyance will be furnished to and from the registration places. Those who have not registered or do not register tomorrow will be notified by letter, according to the present plans.

Dies of Typhoid Fever

John Worley, age 39, died at his home near Fork Ridge of typhoid Tuesday night. The remains were taken to Wheeler, Va., Wednesday, where funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Robertson Wednesday afternoon. Burial was in a cemetery there. The deceased is survived by a wife and four children.

MINER VICTIM OF FALLING SLATE

Accident at Yellow Creek Yesterday Affords First Example Group Insurance Working

Walter Massengill, age 27, was killed at Yellow Creek Mines by falling slate at about 10 o'clock this morning. The deceased, a coal loader, was working in his room at the mine when the accident causing his death occurred. He is survived by a wife. His home was at the rear of the furnace property. The body was removed to the Callison Undertaking establishment this morning. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

This is the first death that has occurred among the Log Mountain coal company employes since they have been protected by the group insurance which the coal company in conjunction with the Metropolitan Insurance company, is carrying on all its employes.

According to the terms of the policy the widow will receive $500 cash, an extra $200 for burial expenses and $50 per month as long as she remains a widow until the compensation fund of $4000 is exhausted, after which time if she is still a widow, she will be carried for out the widows' and orphans' compensation fund.

This affords a splendid example of how the group insurance which the company furnishes its employes operates in case of emergency. It affords the beneficiary a fund sufficient for living expenses in case the insured meets with a natural or accidental death.

U. OF K. TEAM SHOWS PROWESS

1,500 Fans See Downfall of Marshall —To Play Cincinnati Saturday

The University of Kentucky Wildcats, in their first game of the season with Marshall College, in which they were returned victors to the tune of 41 to 0, clearly proved to the largest crowd of football fans that ever saw a Marshall game, that they were not overrated and that more than one good man was available for every position on the team.

Kentucky outclassed Marshall in every department of the game, but the Big Green team fought from the start to finish with a gameness and determination that a weaker team than Kentucky could not have overcome. Only straight football was used by the Wildcat team in stopping the rushes of Marshall and in advancing the ball. Kentucky started off with a rush and scored one touchdown in less than five minutes of play, following with four more before the half was up, thus sewing the game up securely.

Coach Winn seemed content to send in substitutes, giving nearly every man a trial in the initial contest. Twenty-five changes were made in the Cat lineup during the course of the game, Russell and McFarland being the only men that stayed the whole game.

Next Saturday the Wildcats goes to Cincinnati to bear the Bearcat in his own den. Adherents of the Blue and White feel assured he will come back with the beard, hide and all.

BARBECUE FEATURE OF L. M. U. HOMECOMING

HARROGATE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—An old-fashioned barbecue on the Lincoln Memorial University campus about 12:30 o'clock Saturday will serve as the noonday meal and feature occasion of the L. M. U. homecoming to be held at Harrogate Saturday. The program proper begins at 10:30 o'clock in the auditorium and several interesting speakers are scheduled for the morning session.

In the afternoon there will be a football game between two teams assembled from the University players for the occasion.

All former students are urged to attend this Homecoming Saturday and to take part in the celebration and friends of the University are also welcomed.

INCREASED POSTAL RECEIPTS SHOW BETTER BUSINESS HERE

An improvement in business over last year is indicated in Middlesboro by increased postal receipts. An increase of $742.18 was shown in receipts for September this year over those of September 1922. For the quarter ending October 1, an increase of $1408.72 over a similar period last year was indicated

TOMORROW SPECIAL REGISTRATION DAY

Another Chance for Eligible Voters—Polls Open From 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

A special registration day will be held in Middlesboro tomorrow in order that those men and women who wish to vote at the November election and the city primaries and who did not get a chance to register last Tuesday, may do so. Tuesday was the regular state registration day, this special date being set aside by the city for the convenience of the voters.

At this time all residents of Middlesboro over 21 years of age, black or white, Republican or Democrat, are urged to register so that they may be eligible to vote. A comparatively few women registered Tuesday and it is being urged that they give the matter more attention and come out Saturday. Voting is as much their duty, and in many cases more for their interests, than for men.

The Republican headquarters will have cars all day to afford transportation to those persons who wish to come to the polls and who will call them. Polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

LEXINGTON KIWANIANS TELL HOME CLUB OF CONVENTION

Aglow with recollections of their convention held at Middlesboro last week, the delegates of the local Kiwanis club spent yesterday's luncheon meeting in telling their fellow members of what they missed by not attending the gathering of the Kentucky-Tennessee Kiwanians.

Dr. J. A. Stucky, president of the Lexington Kiwanis club, and a delegate to the convention, told the members of the apparent growth of the Kiwanis spirit which was manifested at the convention and commented on the fellowship which was very evident there.

Prof. Edward Saxon, author of the Spirit of Kiwanis," a one act playlet which was presented at the convention, said that the production was enthusiastically received.

John Stain, Dr. Thomas L. Settle and Dr. S. B. Marks told of the growth of the Kiwanis spirit in Kentucky and contrasted previous Kiwanis conventions with the recent one.

L. B. Shouse spoke of the hospitality and entertainment which was given the delegates in Middlesboro.

Doctor Stucky, who was in charge of the meeting, announced that the Lexington Kiwanians have been invited to be the guests of the University High School football team Friday afternoon at Stoll field when the University plays the Madison High School team. —Lexington Herald.

COBB TO OPEN BARBER SHOP ON CUMBERLAND AVE.

R. E. Cobb, manager of the Cumberland Hotel barber shop, will establish a shop in the Manring theater building in the room recently occupied by the De Luxe Beauty shop. The new place will be ready to open about October 15. Mr. Cobb will be the owner and manager of it. The shop will be equipped with the very best modern appliances and only first class barbers will be employed. It will have five or six chairs.

BOND ISSUE NOT TO RAISE TAXES

Question Is Spending Revenue, Not Collecting It, Good Road, Folder Says

The Kentucky Good Roads Association has in preparation maps of the complete system of roads to be built by the bond issue, if passed, and literature explaining the proposition. The following information in the form of a folder will be used extensively in the campaign, in addition to detailed information printed in more extensive form:

"1. The purpose of the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue is to build the roads in five years, $10,000,000 in bonds being issued each year during this period, and the current revenues for roads used to pay off the bonds in thirty years' time and also provide sufficient funds for maintenance, with absolutely no increase in taxes.

"2. The state road revenues for the year ending July 1, 1923, were as follows:

Automobile tax	$2,657,619
Gasoline tax	546,188
3c Apportionment	700,000
Total	$3,943,807

Finish in 30 Years

"3. This money is now being spent in building 50 odd patches of road at widely scattered points on what the legislature has defined as Kentucky's state primary road system of 4,175 miles, linking up every county in the state. This patch-work aggregates approximately 1,000 miles, less than half of which have been brought up to the required standard of construction. At the present rate of progress, this system will be completed in about 30 years.

"4. By employing this same revenue in another way, Kentucky would have to pay only $2,830,000 a year to meet interest and sinking fund installments on a $50,000 bond issue, bearing 4 1-2 per cent interest and retire the whole issue within 30 years. With this bond issue and the money already voted by the various counties, together with the aid of the federal government, the state road system can be completed in five years.

"5. The surplus over and above interest and sinking fund payments this year would be in round numbers $1,200,000. This surplus will steadily increase as the roads are built and the number of automobiles and gasoline consumption increase. This surplus will be available for maintenance of the roads when built.

Twenty States Set Example

"6. Not a dollar will be added to these taxes in the road bond issue is voted. Not a dollar will be saved in taxes in the bond issue is not voted. The question is not one of raising revenues but the method of spending it to get the best results. Twenty other states have voted road bond issues which are being paid in a similar manner.

"7. Both candidates for governor and both party platforms have declared in favor of submitting the question of a bond issue to a vote of the people. Under the constitution, the question of a bond issue must be submitted by the legislature to a vote of the people and, if the majority of the voters favor it, bonds can be issued which must be retired within the 30 year period.

"8. The Kentucky Bankers' Association has endorsed the submission of this bond issue. Numerous state, community and civic bodies have done likewise. Out of 98 newspaper editors in the state who have been asked to define their position, 93 have declared in favor of submission.

Seek to Show Full Facts

"9. Kentucky is rapidly awakening to these facts: First—The road system can be completed in five years with no increase in taxation. Second—That this system when built can be adequately maintained. Third—That an honest and efficient highway commission must have charge of the expenditure of the bond issue and the construction of the road system. Both candidates for governor are pledged to announce before the election the men they will place on the commission.

"10. The Kentucky Good Roads Association has undertaken to get the full facts of the proposed bond issue before the people and wants them to study every phase of it, as it is a sane, sound solution of our road problem. This association is made up of citizens from all over the state who have laid aside all political differences in their purpose to have Kentucky realize the benefit of better homes, better farms, better trade conditions, better citizenship and a united commonwealth."

COUNTRY CHILDREN IN SCHOOL HERE

Some Departments too Crowded to Allow Outsiders, Others Come in by Paying Tuition

The crowded conditions of many departments of the grade schools makes it necessary to keep a close check in order that those pupils not residing within the city school boundaries may be excluded, according to Supt. J. W. Bradner.

In some rooms, however, there is ample space for accommodation of a few non-resident pupils and these are being admitted. The city school management is glad to receive such pupils where space permits, though of course the city children come first. A tuition fee is charged for outside pupils which aids, in a small way, the school finances.

There are many pupils living out-to attendnow is thetime for all good side Middlesboro who are unable to attend school, Supt. Bradner stated, because there is no school in their neighborhood. Some of these live near enough to attend the city schools but are unable to pay tuition fees. The city, of course, cannot aid them. Lack of educational facilities in the county is the cause of their being denied school advantages.

HARD-UP COLLECTORS SELL ART TREASURES TO AMERICA

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Art collectors from America have sent more treasures to America since the war than were purchased by Americans during the 20 years previous to 1910.

English collectors explain that this is the result of the need for cash which is being acutely felt in England. Many formerly wealthy art collectors are forced to sell their possessions in order to meet high taxation and living costs. There seems to be no such condition among the American collectors, for their English agents are everywhere and always ready to seize upon any treasures that are for sale. In fact, so anxious are some of the agents to buy that they have adopted the method of calling on well known collectors and making them offers for various objects.

Art objects to the value of $10,000,000 were shipped to the United States last year.

MANY FROM HERE TO UNION COUNTY HOMECOMING SUNDAY

A number of local people, natives of Union county, Tenn., are planning to attend the Homecoming for Union county people Sunday at Maynardville, according to A. W. Bowman who is active in making arrangements for the occasion.

The present plans are for the Middlesboro people to leave here early Sunday morning, not necessarily in a body. They will assemble at Harmes' Ridge, a point a few miles north of Maynardville, and go into the town in a body.

T. H. Haynes, of Knoxville, general chairman, reports that arrangements are complete and that indications are that a large crowd will be present. Joe McDonald, Maynardville chairman, says that everything is in readiness there for the event

MACHINE GUN COMBING AND GAS BOMBS FAIL TO BUDGE MUTINOUS CONVICTS IN EDDYVILLE PRISON

Three Desperadoes Barricaded in Dining Hall Hold Out After Third Day—at Least One Is Known to be Alive

THIRTY MILITIA CALLED FROM MAYFIELD COMPANY

Associated Press

PADUCAH, Oct. 5.—Pickets from Mayfield, state guards, at vantage points on the administration building at the state penitentiary in Eddyville using field glasses reported shortly before noon they believed they could discern two forms prone on the floor of the dining hall, evidently wounded men No sign of the third could be detected. Captain Crawford of the Mayfield troops began a volley of firing and will follow it with another machine gun combing. The battle of musketry and the heavier roar of machine guns was plainly heard over the telephone wire while the Eddyville correspondent was telephoning the news here.

Associated Press

EDDYVILLE, Oct. 5.—Mutinous convicts of the state prison here were still entrenched in the mess hall at daylight today. Gas bombs and hand grenades failed to dislodge them and the withering machine gun fire, which tore holes in the walls failed to bring an offer of surrender. The state board of charities and corrections was expected to reach here late today and direct the operation to dislodge the desperadoes. Apparently until board members arrive hostilites will be halted.

Thirty militia men of the Mayfield company arrived here today to assist the prison authorities in controlling the situation.

Associated Press

PADUCAH, Oct. 5.—Special telegrams reaching here today forecast a definite abandonment of the proposal to dynamite the dining hall at Eddyville penitentiary where three convicts have barricaded themselves after murder of prison guards and where one or more is known to be alive and waiting for attack. The dynamiting plan was abandoned because it would create a serious situation for the 600 convicts whose feeding and sanitary arrangements would be destroyed. What plan of action will be submitted to drive the convicts from the stronghold was not disclosed to correspondents, but apparently none have been agreed upon.

SHOW INTEREST IN SATURDAY GAME

Local Boys Will Meet Stanford High Team Which Beat Them Last Year

A great deal of interest in the football game which will take place between the Middlesboro high school and the Stanford team at the East End athletic park tomorrow at 2:30. A much larger patronage is expected, particularly by Middlesboro people, than for the game last Saturday.

The Stanford boys defeated the local team last year, but, having undergone more intensive training this year, M. H. S. hopes to make a better showing. Without doubt it will be the hardest fought and the most interesting game of the season

The local team needs the support of Middlesboro people, not only in a financial way. The home team can play a better game if an enthusiastic crowd gives its moral support.

WEATHER AND CROP CONDITIONS IN KENTUCKY TO DATE

Decidedly warm weather prevailed during the first five days, but the week ended cool with temperatures somewhat below normal. Except for scattered showers in the extreme eastern counties, no rain occurred. Sunshine was ample in all districts. Conditions were exceedingly favorable for maturing the late crops and for cutting corn and tobacco. Most tobacco has been cut and housed. A small part of some crops is still out, but even this is generally ripe and ready to cut. Tobacco in barns cured rapidly and is now in satisfactory condition. Early cuttings are almost completely cured.

Late corn showed marked improvement and is practically mature in most districts. Another week of favorable weather will place nearly all of it beyond frost danger. Corn dried much more rapidly and cutting made better progress. Most early corn can now be cut with safety. Considerable rye was sown on corn and tobacco stubble for a cover crop. Some that was sown earlier is up and growing well. Plowing for wheat became more general as the pressure of other work relaxed, but very little wheat has been sown on account of the presence of the Hessian fly.

Late potatoes are generally good, and some are being dug. Most of the crop needs about ten days more to mature properly. The weather was especially favorable for sweet potatoes, which are good in most counties. Pastures are needing rain in the western region. Considerable hay was made from cowpeas, with weather exceptionally favorable for curing.

J. L. Kendall, Meteorologist.

ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS IN WHICH TO PAY CITY TAXES

Only four more days to pay city taxes before the ten per cent penalty is imposed.

The time limit fixed by the city ordinance for the payment of such taxes is October 10 and after that date they will be collected plus ten per cent for collection charges.

Not more than half the entire assessment has been paid, according to Frank Kearns, city collector. Some payments are received daily but unless there is a grand rush for payment on the list, a number of tax fees will be collected after the expiration of the time limit with the extra percentage.

A THOUGHT

Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any.—Col. 3:13.

If then art of elephant-strength or of lion-claw, still peace is, in my opinion, better than strife.—Saadi.

FOLLOWING UP OUR GAINS THE BEST WAY

Middlesboro in the last few weeks has received an impetus which will not for a long time be checked, even without further activity on the part of our leading business men, but it seems that it would be the part of good business and further development if the merchants of the city would vigorously follow up their advantages received from the successful Fall Festival.

The interest of the buying public should be maintained by all means. One method would be a co-operative promotion of regular sales days at frequent intervals, preceded by extensive advertising on the part of the Merchants' association. As it is under the present method, a few individual merchants are carrying the load by their own advertising, and the people they bring to town will naturally give some trade to the concerns who are not advertising or who are not co-operating strongly with the association.

This is not only manifestly unfair, but the proportion of returns which the same amount of money spent in co-operative promotion of sales days would produce. Even this phase of the matter is not the most important one. The big thing now in the development of Middlesboro and the extension of Middlesboro's retail business is to continue to foster the good will of the people in the city's trade radius. A wonderful start has been made through the medium of the Merchants' association and the holding of an annual Fall Festival, but it should by all means be followed up consistently and untiringly.

The angle of this whole matter we would stress is that everyone who is a member of the Merchants association should lend every possible assistance in the furtherance of the usefulness of the association and should carry their proportionate part of the work in extending Middlesboro's trade radius and in cultivating the people who logically should come here as buyers. What money is spent in this way will be returned in good time in a manifold measure.

REBUILDING OF JAPAN

Japan's supreme test has arrived. No war, no disaster in her extraordinary advance into position as the world's fourth power approaches the first before her. Out of a clear sky without a moment's warning, her commerce, industry and finance have been wrecked. Her greatest cities are no more. Death and famine stalk over the land. Her manufacturing plants are blasted; her great commercial companies bankrupt, and, worse still, she has no financial reserve to face rebuilding a whitened sepulchre of ambitious world power.

In this reconstruction, of course, the whole world will aid. American financiers will find a way to help Nippon back on her feet. In the rebuilding the newspapers will once more play its dominant role for through its columns must go the story and facts of what Japan needs and what other nations will do for its help.

Nippon profited hugely in the wars of the late generation. Her aspirations toward world power have baffled statesmen and her aggressive tendencies toward colonization on the west coast have caused American publishers and diplomats much anxiety. It will not be difficult to deal with her now. She will be responsive for she is prostrate.

The catastrophe which overtook Japan will do more for world peace, as far as Japan is concerned, than even the advanced thought of the late President Harding, which inspired a world disarmament—a project in which Japan has been slow to entirely subscribe.

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS
COPYRIGHT 1925 —NEA SERVICE INC

LETTER FROM LESLIE FRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I hardly knew how I got home, although I must have been conscious enough of material things to drive my car, for I had no accident. I went upstairs and sat down in my own room, after carefully locking the door—just why I do not know, but the idea was so tremendous that I wanted no interruptions while thinking about it.

How did Alice come with such a magnificent and valuable string of pearls, and having them, why did she give them to me? Could it be possible that she did not know the pearls were real?

I went back to the time when she gave them to me. I wanted again to understand and remember just what she said. I remembered she had given them to me the day that she had asked me to wear "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue."

When she handed me the pearls she said, after I had exclaimed with delight over them, that she had come across a man who had purchased them for someone that he had cared for very, very much, and then, as he had lost her, he did not want them any more. She said she had found out how to obtain them through Betty Stokley, and knowing that Betty Stokley was abroad, I jumped at the conclusion that she had gotten these beads, as I supposed they were, from some foreigner who had arrived in this country, and becoming hard pressed for money, had sold them to her.

Did Alice tell me the truth? Did she really find some man who was desperate because he had lost the woman for whom the jewels and who was willing to sell them to her as imitation pearls? Or did she know that the pearls were real, and by driving a sharp bargain with the man, ask father for the generous check which he would have to give for them at bargain prices?

One moment I was ready to exonerate her and then I was afraid that someone else would get the riddle, or if she answered, someone other than myself might get it. I wanted to ask my father if he knew anything about it, but again I was afraid. It didn't seem to me possible that dad would have kept it all to himself that he was giving me, through Alice, a string of glorious pearls; a string worth over two hundred thousand dollars.

No, that wasn't like dad. He always wanted his gifts appreciated at their proper value, notwithstanding he was always very generous.

I felt I could never wear the jewels again. I would be afraid every minute that someone would take them from me. I knew now why it was that the man at the restaurant table had been looking at me so the time that Jack wanted to kick him. He probably was a pearl connoisseur.

Over two hundred thousand dollars! How foolish for one in my situation to have such jewels.

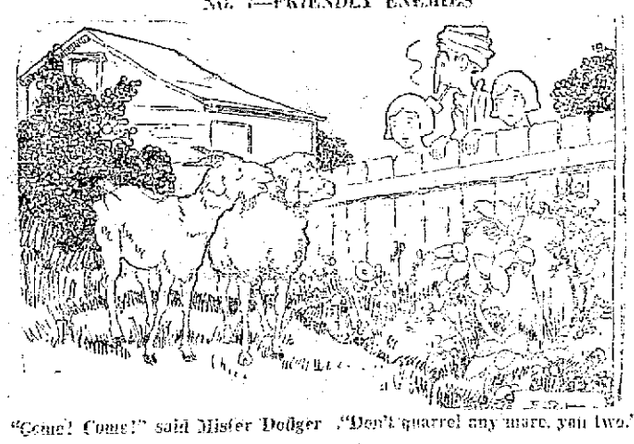
NO. 7—FRIENDLY ENEMIES



"Come! Come!" said Mister Dodger. "Don't quarrel any more, you two."

"Baa!" said Snipper Sheep. "Maa!" said Billy Goat. "Baa!"

"Maa!"

"Baa!"

"Maa!"

"They're at it again," said Mister Dodger, looking over the fence into a yard where Snipper Sheep and Billy Goat were quarreling.

"Hey there!" called Mister Dodger. "What's the matter?"

"He called me a moon-face," bleated Snipper Sheep.

"He called me a garbage can!" declared Bill Goat.

"Well, he eats just anything at all!" accused Snipper. He ate a towel and a shirt sleeve off the clothes-line today."

"I have to eat something," declared Billy Goat, disgustedly. "He pulls up all the grass by the roots when he eats. He's got the field ruined. Maa!"

"Baa!" replied Snipper.

"Come! Come!" said Mister Dodger. "Don't quarrel any more, you two. Here comes Farmer Brown with a man. If he catches you quarreling, he'll sell you both."

"Sell!" exclaimed the two fighters. "Who's going to be sold?"

"Nobody, I hope," answered Mister Dodger, wagging his head solemnly. "But we'll see. Come, Nancy! Come, Nick! It's time we were disappearing. We'll dodge behind the bushes."

Farmer Brown and his friend arrived a minute later and walked right up to Snipper Sheep. Farmer Brown held him up by his horns while the stranger felt him all over.

"I'll give you fifteen dollars for him," said he. "He's good and fat and he has lots of wool on him."

"All right," said Farmer Brown. "I'll take it."

But suddenly something happened. Billy Goat had heard every word and without warning he lowered his horns and made a rush at the stranger.

When Mister Man dizzily picked himself up a minute later, he made a bee-line for the fence.

"Keep your sheep! I don't want him," he called angrily. "I wouldn't give you a lead nickel for him."

Farmer Brown patted Billy's fat back. "Good boy!" he chuckled. "You have taught me a lesson. I didn't want to sell Snipper at all!"

Mister Dodger nudged Nancy. "What did I tell you?" he whispered. "It's often the way with friends. They fight like sixty, but they stick up for each other every time."

"Baa!" bleated Snipper gratefully, looking at Billy with affectionate eyes.

"Maa!" replied Billy. "Don't mention it, old boy! Nothing at all!"

Berton Braley's Poem

THE REPEATER

We like to hear humorous stories,
We don't much mind if they're old,
For some yarns retain all their glories,
No matter how often they're told;
But Angels in Heaven defend us
And keep us away from the bloke
Who trumpets a horse-laugh tremendous,
And keeps on repeating
repeating
repeating
Forever repeating the joke.

He starts with a grin and chuckle,
Proceeds with a snigger or two,
And breaks both his belt and his buckle
Before he's a quarter-way through
Deliver us all from that fellow,
Avaunt from us, beat it, avoint!
Than that with a roar and a bellow,
Who keeps on repeating
repeating
repeating
Forever repeating the point.

We get so we wince at his laughter
Which irritates all of our nerves,
We wish him a horrid hereafter
Where he will get what he deserves:
Red devils and pitchforks to prick him
In every oft fiber and joint,
To harry and jab him and stick him
And see that he's getting,
Be sure that he's getting
Eternally getting—the Point!

Make the children study. Nothing makes a boy sicker at school time than not knowing his lessons.

A watched percolator never bubbles.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE ARABIAN NIGHTS

When the breeze of a joyful dawn blew free
In the silken sail of infancy
The tide of time flowed back with me,
The forward flowing tide of time;
And many a sheeny summer morn,
Adown the Tigris I was borne.
By Bagdad's shrine of fretted gold,
High-walled gardens green and old;
True Mussulman was I and sworn,
For it was in the golden prime
Of good Haroun Alraschid.

Anigat my shallop, rustling through
The low and blooming foliage, drove
The fragrant, glistening deeps, and clove
The citron shadows in the blue;
By garden porches on the brim,
The costly doors flung open wide,
Gold glittering through lamplight dim,
And broidered sofas on each side;
In sooth it was a goodly time,
For it was in the golden prime
Of good Haroun Alraschid.

—Alfred Tennyson.

Flank Steak

Much has been said the last few years about the cheap cuts of meat. It is perfectly true that some cuts of meat are less expensive per pound than others. But if more fuel must be used in cooking the "cheap cut," if there is less edible meat in the whole and if more pounds must be purchased for a meal, the merit of the cheap cut as such is nil.

However, if housekeepers will plan to cook these cuts that require long cooking while the oven is going for baking, the cost of fuel is decreased.

The waste is made up in the delicious flavor of the dish. Casserole dishes combine vegetables with meat in such a way that all juices are preserved.

By using all the meat the housewife makes it possible for the butcher to sell the choice cuts at a more reasonable rate. If women demand porterhouse exclusively the butcher finds himself with flank steak and chuck roasts on his hands to such an extent that he must charge a seemingly exorbitant price for the meat he does sell to make up for what he can't market

Saturday morning when the oven is hot for baking put in this rolled flank of beef. Then at dinner time reheat the oven for an hour and bake the extra vegetable or pudding while the meat is finishing,

The meat will cook some in its own heat and the heat of the cooling oven in the morning so an hour at dinner time is plenty of time to thoroughly cook the flish.

Rolled Flank Steak

The steak should be scored by the butcher or at home before preparing for the oven.

Make a paste of 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and 3 tablespoons vinegar. Spread meat with paste, cover with stuffing, roll and tie. Dredge with flour and bake as suggested for two hours in a slow oven.

Stuffing: One and one-half cups stale course bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, hot water.

Mix salt, pepper and onion with bread crumbs. Add melted butter and mix well with a fork. Add hot water carefully, mixing with the hands. The dressing should be just moist enough to hold together, but not sticky or pasty.

Do not roll the meat too tightly. Bind securely with cord. When ready to serve cut the cord and remove from roll.

Another way to cook a flank steak is in a casserole with vegetables.

Casserole of Meat

One cup dried carrots, 1 cup diced potatoes, 1-4 cup diced turnip, 1 large onion, salt and pepper.

Spread steak with paste as in preceding recipe. Cut meat to fit the casserole. Oil casserole well with bacon fat If the steak is cut in three pieces put a third of the vegetables in the casserole. Arrange them in layers, slicing the onion through them. Season with salt and pepper and add a piece of meat. Continue layer for layer of meat and vegetables until all is used. Add one cup boiling water, cover and bake an hour and a half in the morning and an hour at dinner time. Serve from casserole.

Flank steak is also spread with the paste, "smothered" in thinly sliced onions and baked in a frying pan with one-half cup of hot water in a slow oven for an hour and a half or two hours.

The long cooking and the vinegar break down the tough tissues of the meat and leave it very palatable and nourishing.

REV. REEVES TO PREACH ON FOOTBALL TEAM SUN. NIGHT

The Rev. A. B. Reeves, pastor of the Christian Church, is preparing a special sermon for Sunday night on "Our Football Team," and he has sent special invitations to the high school faculty and to the members of the football squad to be present, at that time, 7:30 o'clock. All students and teachers are particularly urged to attend this service, whether they received special invitations or not. This interest in our football team and in our athletics is commendable and it is hoped that a large number will attend this service.

A Study in Evolution

Not one train, but two, are boasted by this ravishing evening gown of black velvet and white Satin de Lyon, beaded with crystal, which adds to itself a subtle and misty charm with a double scarf train of grey Mirrokrepe. And here is a point which may well merit the attention of grey-bearded scientists as well as social butterflies. The train is itself a study in evolution. The Deauville scarf, having decorated every conceivable part of the costume, from neck, to wrist, to waist, now throws up its hands, so to speak, and cascades down our heroine's back in graceful double streamers, interrupting its course only to unite briefly at the waist.

This dress illustrates the tendency noted at the Paris openings, according to Henri Creange, to combine several, different materials in one costume, at the same time achieving a distinguished harmony of line and color. Made in three tiers of flounces, it still retains, through skillful lines, the straight silhouette. The scalloping of the flounces is a persistent style motif of the new season.

As a footnote to a costume of distinctive elegance, Milady wears light grey kid slippers, matching in tone her flowing scarf train.

"WHAT IS MENTAL ATTITUDE OF YANKS?" ASKED

"What do you think about the series if the Giants play the Yanks?"

Recently, while chattering with Kid Gleason, famous manager of the Chicago White Sox, I asked that question.

Kid Gleason and John McGraw are players of the old school. In their day, stars on the ball field, both have reached an enviable position in the managerial end of the game.

"It all depends on the mental attitude of the Yanks," replied Gleason. I profess ignorance.

"The Yanks are sure of a great club," he continued. "Capable of beating any team in the country when at the top of the game and equally ordinary when in a slump.

"In Ruth the Yankees have the most valuable player I have ever seen in baseball. He has been a wonder this year, playing brilliantly in all departments of the game. When he is going big the Yanks are almost unbeatable. But will he go big in the series?

Yanks Have the Pitching

"The Yanks have a great pitching staff but in a short series I would just as soon have two great pitchers as four. As a matter of fact there are a couple of Yankee pitchers who I do not look to have much success in the series, for they are the type of pitchers favored by the Giants.

"However, to my way of thinking, the mental attitude of the Yankees, and the presence of John McGraw, will be the deciding factors in the series. The Yanks have lost two series to the Giants. In the last eight games played between the two clubs, the best the Yankees have been able to do is tie on game.

Must Forget Past Failures

"Will the Yankees go into the series unmindful of the fact the team has twice proven easy for the Giants? That is going to be the big test for the American League pennant winners. Will they be able to forget that on the bench sits John McGraw, manager of the Giants, who in two series has outguessed them in a most decisive manner?"

Kid Gleason has touched on the high spots of the series when he makes reference to the manner in which the Giants have overwhelmed the Yanks in the last eight games played between the two clubs.

The Mental Attitude

In baseball certain teams seem to have something on other teams, in other words they are always able to beat them a majority of the games. Have the Giants something on the Yankees, who, despite the opinion of the baseball experts of the country, have twice beaten the American Leaguers in the world series?

Can the Yankees forget the Giants' triumphs of 1921 and 1922?

Can the Yankees forget the fact that in the last eight games played between the two clubs they have failed to win a single contest?

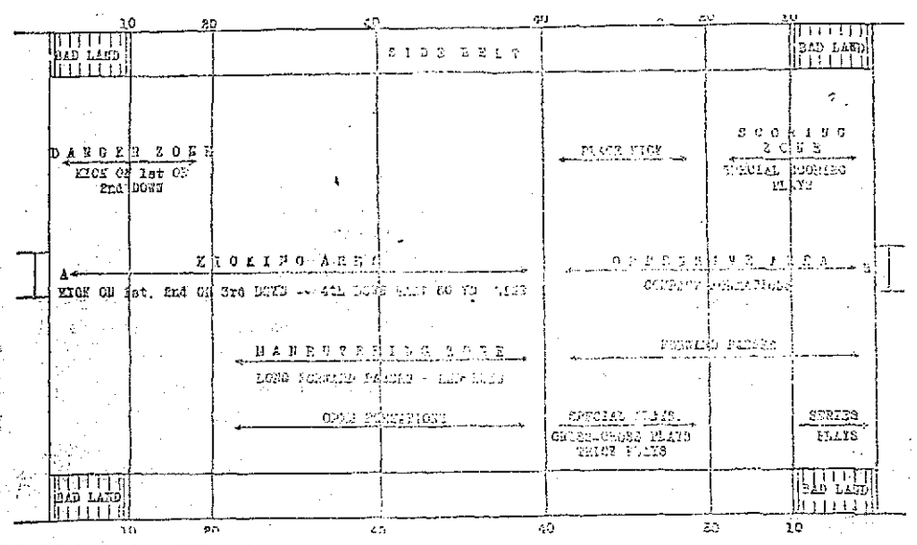
Can the Yankees forget that the Giants outsmarted them on the bases and won several games that should have been victories for Babe Ruth and Company?

Can the Yankees forget the fact that despite expert opinion to the contrary, the pitching staff of the Giants stopped them?

The mental attitude of the Yankees is what will decide the series, thinks Kid Gleason.

And take it from me, the "Kid" is a pretty wise man.

QUARTERBACK IS FOOTBALL'S GENERAL; SUCCESSFUL LEADER MUST RESPECT LAW OF AVERAGES



STRATEGY MAP—OFFENSE. THE TEAMS ATTACKING GOAL "B." THE QUARTERBACK SHOULD MAKE A CAREFUL STUDY OF THE TACTICT TO BE FOLLOWED IN THE DIFFERENT AREAS.

The generalship employed in a football game should be a result of the history of played games, the experiences and study of the coaches and the mastery of the sequence of plays. The experience of coaches, the style of offense and defense, the relation one play bears to another, and the formations which contain the various plays, make up the system previous to each game. The system determines the tactics and strategy to be employed.

The average spectator at a game is of the opinion that the quarterback does all of the thinking for the team as far as the selection of plays on the field is concerned. Superficially speaking, he does: he, with the captain, guides the offense. The spectator forgets, however, that the quarterback in turn is guided by the system and that all of the men plus the coaches are part of that system. The system develops football brains, controls the football thought of the quarterback, and furnishes him the data on which to base his generalship.

The coaches must complete the quarterback to respect the law of averages and teach him discrimination between sound football and the "go as you please," hit or miss kind. They should assist him in selecting the plays not by merely telling him what and when to choose, but by fortifying him with a group of formations and a cycle of plays which, because they are related, implant themselves firmly in his memory.

The kind of play that is taught, the way it is taught, the time the play is drilled, the part of the field it is practiced on, the backfield man which the play emphasizes, and the number of plays, are all cogs in the wheel that operates the football machine.

This system should not be so rigid in its demands that the general cannot extricate it from a groove, but should be flexible enough to be varied from year to year because of the varying ability of the players.

The quarter and the captain must be so much a part of the system that they understand the true meaning of every play and the part each man of the team is to play. They must know the why and wherefore of every move which the coaches make, such as using play "A" in preference to play "B," and why back No. 2 is used so much more than No. 3 or No. 4; and why one should punt on the third down nearly all of the time against certain opponents, and why one should punt half of the time on the second and the other half of the fourth against other opponents.

The quarterback should study a strategic map, such as is reproduced, until it is second nature with him to remember the kind of tactics to adopt in different parts of the field. In our map the offensive team is attacking goal B.

COURAGE FACTOR IN WORLD SERIES

Ability to Deliver Punch in Crisis Is What Makes a Team Great

The bigger the stakes, the greater some teams perform.

In the pinch certain players are always dangerous, often others possessing mere ability fail to deliver in the crisis.

In baseball, players and teams noted for their ability to deliver in the pinch are referred to as "money players." It is simply a phrase coined in sport circles to apply to those regarded as "game."

Just before the close of the present season, while working the final series of the year in New York, I sat next to four rabid New York baseball fans while "subwaying" to the ball park. Two of the fans couldn't see any team but the Giants in the series, the other two were equally strong for the Yanks. They were busy discussing the possibilities of the coming series.

"It will be soft for the Yankees this year," remarked one of the fans. "The Giants, with that bush league pitching staff, will be lucky to win a game."

Pitching Old Stuff

"Spring a new one, that pitching gag is old stuff," replied the Giant supporter. "No matter how punk that pitching staff may be good enough to stop the Yanks in the series. The Giants are always there in the pinch."

"Lucky in the pinch you mean," said the other Yank rooter. "The Giants got every break in the last two series. The Yanks are sure due to get lucky."

"Wrong again," said the Giant fan. "The Giants don't get the breaks, they make 'em. The winning ball club always seems lucky because they bring about things that the losing team terms luck."

What About Ruth?

"Babe Ruth will deliver this year." Before the Yank rooter had a chance to go any further, one of the Giant fans interrupted him thusly:

"The Babe will be the usual handicap. Why, the Yanks really only have eight men against the Giants with him in the lineup."

"Nothing is to the Giants, they are the better money players," is the way the argument ended.

It is a rather interesting fact that a great many star ball players are not good money players. The history of the world series proves that in many of the events, some ordinary player has outshone the big stars.

Some players break under tension. They are wonders when not working under strain, but put to the big test they falter. Well do I recall the case of a certain pitcher who has passed out of the majors.

Often Break Under Strain

For several years this pitcher with a second division club was one of the most successful pitchers in the American League. Often the experts would comment on his work, to the effect that if he was with a good team he would seldom lose a game.

He was finally bought by a pennant contender. Working on a club almost twice as strong as his former one, he had but little success. His percentage of games won took a big drop. Working under the strain of a club battling for the pennant, with something depending on every game he worked, the pitcher lost the effectiveness that he always possessed when pitching for a club that had nothing at stake.

"In a world series the baseball is covered with dollar marks as it is hit at certain players," was the explanation a veteran series player once gave me, to illustrate how the difference between the winner and loser's end affected the play of some.

Your Health

by Dr. C. C. Robinson

Foot Trouble

Ignorance of the causes of foot strain and slavish submission to fashion are the chief causes for a vast amount of ill health and nerve tension throughout our whole life. The baby begins wrong because its parents neglect to exercise the help and needed direction in the first steps. Oftimes a little attention to standing and walking will prevent "heel pounding," or the "shuffle," which denotes careless development in the child's foot muscles.

A large part of foot trouble comes from sadly neglecting the foot bath. Through lack of daily care in bathing the feet and providing clean, dry stockings every day your pedal extremities are often poisoned by perspiration and unclean conditions. The skin between the toes becomes "sick" and tender, causing many later foot troubles, such as peeling, cracking and offensive odors.

A careless position in standing at your work by which you favor one foot or the muscles of your legs, often causes a peculiar habit in walking by which the feet become flexed, causing soreness and swelling. This condition if not remedied may make it almost impossible for you to stand properly or continue at your work regularly. Give your feet plenty of rest. If you are inactive be sure that your feet receive the needed amount of exercise to insure proper blood supply. Properly fitted shoes are needed if your mind is to function normally on the affairs of business or pleasure.

Early attention to strengthening exercises for your feet is advised. The arches found in shops will not correct flat feet, they merely act as crutches.

Try the following exercises for the correction of toe muscles, painful joints or weakness of the muscles in the forepart of the leg that support the arch of the foot:

Stand with feet parallel and somewhat apart with the great toes firmly placed or gripping the ground. Without bending the knees or moving the feet rotate the thighs outward repeatedly. Rise on the toes, keeping the body stiff, 10 or 15 times every morning and night, to strengthen the arch.

IS THE AMERICAN HOME IN DANGER

Not With Schoolgirls Learning to Become Efficient Housewives and Model Mothers

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—People who believe the home is a passing institution and that the jazz lane is replacing the Womanly Woman, might realize there is another side to the picture, if they could have a talk with Adelaide Steele Baylor.

This woman of vision and ideals believes in the American woman and in the American home so wholeheartedly that she devotes her entire time to their advancement.

She is head of the home economics department of the Federal Board of Vocational Education and was instrumental in passing the bill providing that girls over 14 years of age may be instructed in household management and care of children while still in the elementary schools.

"The suggestion that girls could be taught the mysterious rites connected with baby care in the public schools would have brought smiles to the faces of housewives of yesterday," she admits with a smile, "but today that's being accomplished very quietly and effectively.

Courses for Girls

"There are at present 117,738 girls scattered through the 48 states who are studying home economics in the public schools—almost 100 per cent more than there were a year ago."

Which doesn't sound as if the home were disintegrating, does it?

Moreover, Miss Baylor insists homemaking education is only on the threshold of its real career.

"Formerly," she says, "housework was carried on along unplanned and often wasteful habits of routine.

"Now we impress upon girls at the start keeping up a home is just as much of a business as keeping a store or a shop, and that like any other business, it should be planned and reduced to rules of efficiency.

Young "Mothers"

"Our courses teach girls to market, to budget their household expenses, to prepare food to secure the maximum nourishment with medium expenditure, and how to eliminate waste in all household operations.

"In many communities instruction is carried on in a model practice cottage. Orphaned babies are adopted by the school and each girl has her turn at the care of the youngster."

Girls fortified with such knowledge will achieve a veritable revolution in the home, Miss Baylor believes, and with the elevation of home life we may look for decided betterment in the standards of national citizenship.

"There's no doubt about it," she assures me, "the housewife is learning her trade. The old cry about a woman's sphere being too restricted has been answered by making it boundless."

TOT, 2, TOSSES BONNET IN 1956 POLITICAL RING

BABY RETA, AND HER GRANDMOTHER, MRS. T. H. FARNEN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Baby Reet Kadv, here, who's just turned 2, has the world's biggest job cut out for her.

In 1956, the first year of her eligibility, she'll become a candidate for president of the United States. Thus will she realize her proud grandma's fondest ambition.

On the score of her policies and platform, Reta maintains discreet silence, probably fearing her adorable lisp may lead to misinterpretation—a bit of tactics which, according to grizzled campaign sharps, betokens uncommon political sagacity.

Bonnet in Ring

Of course, Reta's quite too young as yet to own a real honest-to-goodness hat. So she has contented herself for the present by tossing a baby-like, ribbon-bedecked bonnet into the charmed arena as her first move toward the charted White House goal.

And she can never be naughty! My goodness no! Because good little girls are the only ones who grow up to be presidents. Hence Reta each day must read long and carefully her lesson in diplomacy and conduct from the lives of Washington, Lincoln and others of the fathers who showed the way before her.

In that, Mrs. T. H. Farnen, grandmother of the candidate, and in charge of her campaign, concurs.

"The patter is prominent in St. Louis club circles and an ardent advocate of women's equality at the polls and in public office. Mrs. Farnen says she has consecrated her life to seeing a woman put in command of the nation. Naturally, she prefers a relative for the job.

Vote for Reta

"Reta is growing up in life with an ideal ever before her," she says. "It will be an ideal of serving mankind in the same practical way woman has always served man, by ministering to his needs and protecting him from his enemies and from himself.

"She is never to be permitted to forget that some day she will victoriously into Washington's White House occupant, and must be prepared to fulfill of this high office wi

"Then there is th side of her campai in charge of it must be lose track of Reta be known before she govern the people. velt was an example possible, will be kept eye by means of the nazon army," gathered ho had gathered with te in warring on the Ku so lurks the impromptu chambers.

Facilities

"It will be idle at this time to state what ticket Reta will run on. I am a Republican and proud of it. If necessary, however, Reta will make her race on an independent ticket."

Blocs and Blocks

During the interview, Reta was apparently very much preoccupied with the important task of arranging a pyramid of colored blocks into some fantastic form which pleased her very much.

A cornice to the structure slipped during erection and when the building toppled she gave vent to an alarming cry which was interrupted by the soothing words of Grandma Farnen, who said:

"Don't you fret, honey lamb. See, here's a big shiny penny to put in your bank. When you get to be president you can have block that won't fall down, and not farm blocs either."

But the country's future ruler, never ceasing in her lamentations, let forth a series of unhatted vindictive "wows" in high tenor, probably to evidence her presidential displeasure and token that all was not so well in fairyland.

Height of Skirts

The edict this year is: Sport skirts, 10 inches from ground; general wear skirts, from six to nine inches from ground; formal afternoon or evening dresses, from four inches to full length, or trained.

Long, Tight Sleeves

Long sleeves are the style for daytime dresses, and many of them are tight-fitting. Others are bishop style, or fitted to the elbow, with a gathered or circular section to finish them.

INTRICATE STAGE EFFECTS IN "VENUS" AT MANRING OCT. 12

One of the most intricate stage effects ever devised is "The Loveland Express," which is the scenic piece de resistance in George E. Wintz's original production of "Venus," which is due at the Manring theatre on Friday, October 12.

A full-sized train of Pullman cars, freighted with the Wintz corps of loveliness, departs from the station and winds its way among the hills, gradually disappearing in the dim distance. This remarkable stage illusion is the result of many years of experience and the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

Nyra Brown and Johnnie Goetz, those two well-known stars of musical comedy, will be found heading "Venus" ably supported by several other prominent entertainers and a beauty chorus numbering 24 surpassing any in charm and comeliness.

There are 24 unique and distinctive scenes in "Venus," the work of Earl Burgess, whose work at the Manhattan theatre, New York, has surtracted world wide attention.

The musical score is by Charles G. Maynard and Duncan Peckham. The song hits are many, among which may be mentioned: "Venus," South Sea Island Mood," "Girls Girls Girls," "Tut Tut," "Hello Miss Radio," "Polly Oh," "Beautiful Baby," "Oh Daddy of Mine," "Here's a Winter Garden Doll for You," and "A Kiss for You." The company carries its own special orchestra.

SECOND DAY OF REGISTRATION IS A BUSY ONE

Expect Total 500 to Register Today—Republicans have Free Conveyance for all of Party to Polls Today

REGISTRATION PLACES OPEN TILL 9 TONIGHT

Two hundred and nineteen persons had registered at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, bringing the total number of qualified voters to more than 2000. In view of the fact that this was Saturday afternoon, a time when many men and women are not employed, it is expected that the total for the day will reach upwards of 500.

A systematic campaign to encourage a large registration is being made by the Republican party. Free conveyance to the registration places is furnished and persons who did not register Tuesday are being personally solicited to do so today. Nearly all the prominent Republicans are giving time to the work. An orchestra, mounted on a large truck, bearing the sign "Register Today," has been going over town and musically reminding delinquents that it is their duty to register.

The West End ward was in the lead this afternoon in the number of registrations. It had registered 80 at 1:30. Registrations at the other wards were as follows: City Hall, 35; Opera House 55, and South Side, 45. About 40 per cent of the registrants today are women and about 35 per cent are Democrats.

Registration places will be open until 9 o'clock tonight. Another special registration will be conducted Wednesday for those who have failed to take advantage of previous registrations.

...G REGISTRATION AT HARLAN, G.. O. P.. SWAMP DEMOCRATS

Registration was held Tuesday for the city of Harlan with an unprecedented total of 907 people casting their names in the four Harlan precincts. Polls were open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Officers from Republican, Democratic and Independent parties alike were at the polling places to help in the registration. All courtesies were shown the women who turned out in a larger number than was expected. The women of Harlan are about as interested, it seems, as the men in the forthcoming election.

Registration at the different wards was as follows: Ward No. 1, Court house, Republicans, 117; Democrats, 82; Independents, 12; Ward No. 2, Shop, Republicans, 138; Democrats 61; Independents, 7; Ward No. 3, City Hall, Republicans, 130; Democrats, 45; Independents, 3; Ward No. 4, Cumberland Avenue, Republicans, 127; total of Democrats, 59. Independents, 7 total of 907 in all.

The Republicans swamped the Democrats by a 365 majority, which will be increased on supplemental days.—Harlan Enterprise.

COLORED WOMAN ACQUITTED LIQUOR CHARGES YESTERDAY

Lillie Thompson, colored, was acquitted in the magistrate court here yesterday afternoon of a charge of selling liquor to Andy Clay, colored, on September 26. A number of bottles of whiskey were exhibited which were found in a room of the house of which the defendant is proprietress. The whiskey, she explained, belonged to one of the roomers. She was not tried on charges of having liquor. The evidence offered in the case at trial was the unsupported testimony of Gray.

WIDE INTEREST SHOWN IN MYSTERIOUS CASE WRITING ON GIRL'S ARM

That the story of the mysterious writing on Miss Connie Chadwell's arm is attracting serious interest is shown by the following article in the Knoxville Sentinel under the heading: "Study in Scarlet:"

"Of all the mysterious and miraculous visitations we have ever heard of the case of Miss Connie Chadwell, the 18-year old Hoop, Tenn., girl, who was admonished to "Go Home," while at work at the Big Ben Manufacturing company at Middlesboro Saturday in letters of scarlet that appeared on her arm spelling these words and who obeyed the mysterious warning by going home to find her grandfather at the point of death, seems to us to be the best authenticated that we can recall. The story of the mysterious words appearing and alarming the girl was printed in The Sentinel before the apparent verification was made known. The usual order in such cases is to learn after the event of the prophecy or the prophetic warning having been made. In this case the mysterious warning was made known first.

It seems to us that it is a case which should be investigated by some of the scientists who are so seriously interested in psychic and occult research.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle would certainly find a case here worthy to bring to bear the talents of Sherlock Holmes on his new subject of study.

EAST CUMBERLAND WORK PROGRESSES

Avenue Taking Semblance of Modern Streets — Start Concrete Bridge Soon

With the construction of gutters and curbs and the making of the center park, East Cumberland avenue is beginning to assume the semblance of a modern street.

Gutters are now being made all along the avenue at the east of the bridge and at some points on the west side. Curbings are being made at the sides of the street as well as in the center where the park will be. Dirt from the excavation has been piled in the center; later, this will be leveled form the park.

Quantities of crushed limestone and other materials have been moved to various places along the street so that there will be no delay in making the base and completing the paving after it has begun.

After the work has been completed at the east of the bridge that part of the old structure which is still standing will be taken down and the concrete bridge built. The new bridge will be several feet wider so that in case of high water, the creek will not overflow the street.

FIRST FROST LAST NIGHT TEMPERATURE REACHES 31

This was a high temperature for frost, though, Mr Perkins says it has occurred at 35 degrees. The first frost here has come rather early this year.

JANESVILLE, Ill., Oct. 6—After years of neglect the graves of Thomas and Nancy Lincoln, father and stepmother of Abraham Lincoln, are to be given attention.

These unkept mounds, in a wealth, desolate graveyard, are marked only by unchisled stones made rough by tourists who have chipped souvenirs from them.

The Illinois district of the Lions International has undertaken to raise funds among its members to erect a fitting monument at the graves.

FOOTBALL TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED

M. H. S. Boys Meet Stanford on Home Gridiron Today—No Score First Quarter

Middlesboro High School met Stanford High school at football this afternoon in what promised to be one of the hardest games from the standpoint of the players and one of the most interesting games, from the standpoint of the sidelines, of the season. The game began promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Both teams seemed very evenly matched and near the end of the first quarter neither one had made a touchdown and no one had started for either side. Both sides were penalized several times in the beginning of the game for being offside and each team penalized twice during the first quarter for holding.

The lineup follows:

CORDIAL WELCOME TO LLOYD GEORGE

Former British Premier Leaving for Canada, Gets More Ovation Than Any Since Pershing

Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct 6—With cheers ringing in his ear David Lloyd George left here today for Montreal on his tour of the United States and Canada. Throngs greeted him on the way from his hotel to the railroad station. To no man unless perhaps to General Pershing when he returned from France, has had a more cordial welcome or more spontaneous display of friendship ever been extended.

MINE ARBITERS MEET MONDAY

To make decision in matters at issue, the board of arbitration of the Tennessee-Kentucky Coal Operators Association will convene at Knoxville Monday morning with John P. White, of Louisville, referee, presiding.

This board will not touch upon the strike situation at Caryville, since that question does not come under its jurisdiction. Matters to come before the board are problems that have not met of satisfactory solution by the committees at the mines.

The board is composed of Referee White; Lucian Clark, operator, of Nashville; C. H. Maring, operator, of Pineville; William Turnblazer, president of district 19, U. M. W.; and Ben William or E. L. Reed, making the second union representative. T. J. White is secretary of the board.

GOVERNMENT STILL SEEKS EMPLOYES BY THE THOUSAND

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Despite the fact that the number of federal employes has been reduced by nearly 400,000 since the close of the war, the Civil Service Commission sees no prospect of a considerable decrease in the number of opportunities for government employment.

To meet the normal turnover, which is a tremendous force like the government's is necessarily large, the commission held examinations in the year ended June 30, 1923, for more than six hundred different kinds of positions, in which more than 200,000 persons completed. Present indications are that the number for this fiscal year will be as great.

A study of examinations held during the past two years reveals an interesting range of positions all the way from charwoman and laborer, for which the primary requirement is good physical condition, to those which demand qualifications of a very high order, such as agricultural transportation economist at a salary of $4,000 to $5,500, and mechanical and electrical engineer at a salary of $5,000.

AUSTRALIA FORBIDS EXPORTING KANGAROOS AND BIRDS

Associated Press

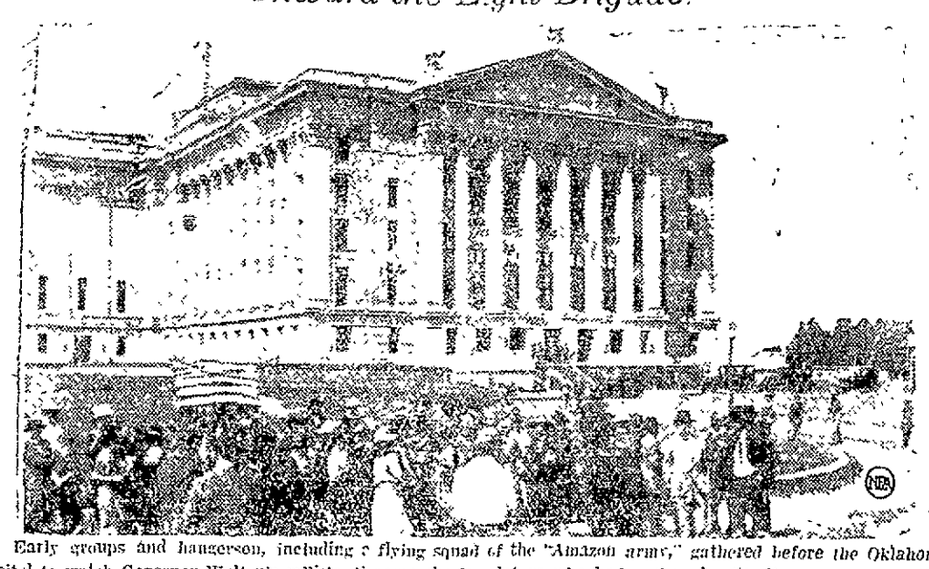
CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—The Australian government has prohibited the exportation of kangaroos and birds, according to a letter received by Col. Sol Stephen, general manager of the Cincinnati Zoological Garden, who has negotiated for the purchase of fourteen kangaroos. Ellis S. Joseph, noted Australian hunter, who has provided the zoo with a number of kangaroos and numerous birds of beautiful plumage wrote Col. Stephen that the fourteen kangaroos are the last to be exported and the last that will leave Australia.

JUDGE BINGHAM KEPT FROM COURT BY FATHER'S ILLNESS

On account of the serious illness of his father at Pineville, County Judge J. S. Bingham was unable to be here for a juvenile trial set for this morning. Several boys, charged with petty disorderliness, were present for a hearing.

Hall Jones, charged with taking a bicycle, will also be tried by the juvenile judge soon. Through an error the name was printed Earl Sloan in yesterday's paper

Onward the Light Brigade!



Early groups and hangerson, including a flying squad of the "Amazon army," gathered before the Oklahoma capitol to watch Governor Walton's militia disperse the legislators who had gathered with the avowed intention of impeaching him for his martial rule declaration throughout the state in warring on the Ku Klux Klan. Guards may be seen patrolling the capitol drives in the foreground where also lurks the impromptu reception committee which cheered the ejected solons when they were thrown from their chambers.

PLAN DOUBLE ATTACK WITH HAND GRENADES AND AMMONIA FUMES ON CONVICTS AT 2 P.M

Eddyville Guards Positive All Three Desperadoes Alive and Moving Around—Wife of One Held—Aiding Escape

STRAY SHOT CUT EDDYVILLE POWER CABLES

Associated Press

EDDYVILLE, Oct. 6.—Behind an armor plate drawn into position by a trunk also protected by plate, Lieutenant Joseph Kelly and Private Jack McKnight took up their position between dining hall and the hospital at the penitentiary here today and prepared to throw hand grenades into the fortress of the three convicts simultaneous with the releasing of ammonia fumes. The zero hour for attack is fixed for two o'clock.

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 6.—With Mrs. Lillian Walters, wife of Monte Walters, desperado, who led the dash of convicts at the Eddyville prison Wednesday, in jail here on a charge of abetting felon to escape, Louisville police today announced they had positive information that weapons and ammunition used in the outbreak were thrown over the prison wall on the night preceding the attempted break and were delivered by a negro trusty to the trio of gunmen who are now besieged in the prison dining room. Police have also started searching for Jim Sparks and Andrew Hawkins, both former Eddyville convicts, who are alleged to have aided in the outbreak. Mrs. Walters, police say, identified Sparks at the Paducah Bank where he cashed a $100 check in September.

Associated Press

PADUCAH, Oct. 6.—A telephone message from Eddyville prison this morning said a stray shot cut the electric power cables supplying light and power to the penitentiary and town of Eddyville and that service of both light and water had instantly ceased. It will require several hours to mend the break which is believed to be over the roof of the dining hall. Guards were definite in statements today that all three besieged convicts are alive and moving about. In the upper story of the structure last night another message said arrangements were being made to throw ammonia fumes into the desperadoes' fortress but that shattering the power cables, delayed the work in laying the pipe to the windows of the dining hall through which to force the ammonia. It is expected, however, to have the pipes laid before night.

Associated Press

EDDYVILLE, Oct. 6.—Except for desultory shots at the three convicts besieged in the prison mess hall here since Wednesday morning, the situation with respect to the capture was unchanged at daylight today.

The speaking will be at 7:30 o'clock Friday night, probably in the city hall.

Mr. Moore, the speaker, is a young man, graduated only a few years ago from the University of Kentucky law school, but he is already making his mark in his profession and in political circles. He is regarded as one of the rising Republican figures of the state and is a young man of excellent qualities as well as exceptional brilliance it is understood. He is a splendid speaker, and all who come out to hear him Friday night are promised a treat.

MRS. WAGNER GETS LIFE SENTENCE

Paducah Woman Guilty of Murder Mother and Unborn Child by Dynamite Explosion

Associated Press

PADUCAH, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Henrietta Wagner, 57, was adjudged guilty of the murder of Mrs. Rosetta Warren and her unborn child, who were blown up by dynamite in the Warren home here last April. She was sentenced to life imprisonment. The jury had been out since last night at six. They reached a verdict shortly before noon. FILIPINO LEGISLATORS MAY RETURN TO NATIVE DRESS

Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 6.—Restoration of the colorful native "barong" as the attire of Filipino legislators, is proposed in a resolution submitted by Representative Rafael Villaneuva in the House of Representatives. Heretofore native lawmakers have sported the approved American dress, but many believe it would be more patriotic to return to the original fashion of the Philippines.

The "barong" is a skirt-like garment, with a narrow neckband and takes the place of both shirt and coat. Worn outside the belt of the trousers, it gives Americans the impression that the wearer had dressed hastily and neglected to tuck his shirt into his trousers.

Representative Villaneuva's resolution, recommendinging a boycott of foreign apparel, effects women's dress as well, and bans all evening gowns made of imported materials.

BEREA COLLEGE OPENS WITH 1500 ENROLLED

RICHMOND, Ky., Oct 6.—The opening of Berea college and its allied schools last week is said to be the most successful in the history of the school, more than 1500 students being enrolled in the different departments. Several hundred more are expected to be added to the list by the time of the close of the enrollment. The students began to arrive a week before school and by the middle of the week when the campus thronged. A great many of these are strangers, coming to Berea for the first time.

A THOUGHT

Did not I weep for him that was in trouble? Was not my soul grieved for the poor?—Job 30:25.

Our souls sit close and silently within,
And their own web from their own entrails spin;
And when eyes meet far off, our sense is such,
That, spider like, we feel the tenderest touch.—Dryden.

KENTUCKY'S REAL WEALTH

"It is not the coal that forms the real worth of Kentucky, nor the green pasture fields nor agricultural lands; it is the bright-eyed boys and girls, many of whom are growing up in ignorance through a lack of educational advantages." These are the words of Judge Thurman B. Dixon in a recent speech in Middlesboro.

Recent reports from local school officials confirm that part of the statement relative to the aptitude of the children and the lack of schools. Though the city itself has a splendid educational system, such is not provided in all parts of the county. Either there must be steady improvement or the condition will, with the growing population, continue to become worse.

Rapid strides have been made in education in Kentucky during recent years, though there is still plenty of room for improvement. Even in this day of intellectual, industrial and business progress, there are many mountain homes to whom the right of education is enjoyed.

A new administration will begin in the state soon and candidates who favor development of this neglected store of wealth should be supported. This can, in all probability be done without slighting other proposed improvements, though it should be done at any cost. Practically all the other public improvements suggested are for the benefit of persons in average circumstances. Surely under privileged persons should come first in the public mind.

Kentucky is yet a pioneer state, comparatively speaking, whose wealth, not only of coal, lands and timbers, but also of sterling character and splendid manhood and womanhood, have hardly been touched. We know not how many embryo Lincolns the rude mountain homes shelter.

To build up an efficient school system, and this means competent teachers, proper buildings and longer school terms, will require years of patient work of legislators and many dollars in taxes but the time and money thus expended will bring forth rich rewards to the state in a better quality of citizenship.

A NEW SLANT ON THE MATTER

The cause of good roads has become the favorite for the newspapers of the state to champion. We read in the eastern Kentucky papers of the proposed Ky.-Va. road; in the Pennyrile the newspapers plead for improvements in the Dixie highway; and in western Kentucky the Jefferson highway and other routes get their share of requests for aid and extension. One of the advantages of good roads is brought out in an article from an eastern Kentucky visitor to Lexington.

"In traveling about it is remarkable how different we find things from what we expect to find them," says R. T. Gunn in the Jefferson Times.

"You visit Lexington, for example, the best and sometimes the worst advertised big little city we know. You expect to find gambling and the much talked of racing and nothing else, and you do find the races going

...d-natured crowd going ... and the next morning, ... would say, you see most ... dag to church by the th... every Sunday too. Some thi... es and lots of the big ones ... ding room only left.

"If Lexington got the same advertising for the good things she has instead of the bad, she would stand out as ... g the best church-going cities in ... ky.

"Th... wrong impression exists in ... regarding the mountains. You ... ed if you carry one or two gun... you go to the mountains. The fact is that except during the hunting season there are fewer guns ... in the mountains than in the ... and less use for them, too.

"What we need is good roads. Get the mountain people to visit the city and the city folks to come and see us. And the only way the majority of the city people will ever be gotten to the mountains is to give them roads and means of travel for the thousands of automobiles they own. And then and only then will the incorrect impressions be eliminated and the real facts known and closer communion and intercourse had. And all will be greatly benefitted thereby."

TELEGRAM FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

See by papers Ellington decamped. Hope you got your money out of Lackawanna before this happened.

Letter from John Alden Prescott to Sydney Carton

That's just what I didn't do. Told Ellington to sell at the peak. The bone actually did and damn him, decamped with that Chapman woman.

As you see, I am in New York. I have been trying to raise six thousand dollars which I must have the last of the week. I have lost fifteen thousand more which I put up on margins. The six thousand dollars I have overdrawn on my commissions.

It would be just like old Bullock, under the circumstances, to have someone examine the books, because he knows I was one of Harry's best friends. This thing is going to get very hot in the newspapers and if he does, God knows what will happen to me.

Leslie tried to tell me the other day something about Ellington but I would not hear it. I've learned my lesson now, Syd, and I'll take her advice always after this provided she doesn't advise me to dabble in stocks, for I promised myself solemnly today never to gamble that way again.

And to think that I sent that last five hundred dollars, which in reality belonged to little Jack, to help that man make his getaway! It is a good thing I haven't met him in New York. If I had, I think I would kill him.

I haven't had much luck trying to borrow the six thousand dollars but I have one more place to go tomorrow. It is to a man for whom I have done many favors. I have let him have money at least once when he was in a similar plight.

I'm beginning to think, Syd, that I am more of a rotter than I ever dreamed. Will you tell me why a man with a beautiful wife and a dear baby as I have—speaking of the baby only piles my remorse to higher heights—should get into such a mess as this?

I was beginning to think that I didn't deserve to be married and now I know it.

Wish you could come down to New York while I am here but probably that isn't feasible because if I get that money in the morning I shall start home at once. Every minute I am away from the office I am expecting a telegram from Bullock saying that he knows what I have been doing and that I am to come home and get my blue ticket.

Just what I am going to tell Leslie I don't know. In fact, at the present moment I know less than I ever did before in my life and you know that is needless.

Jack.

TOMORROW—Mrs. Hamilton to her daughter, Leslie Prescott—A motherly chat.

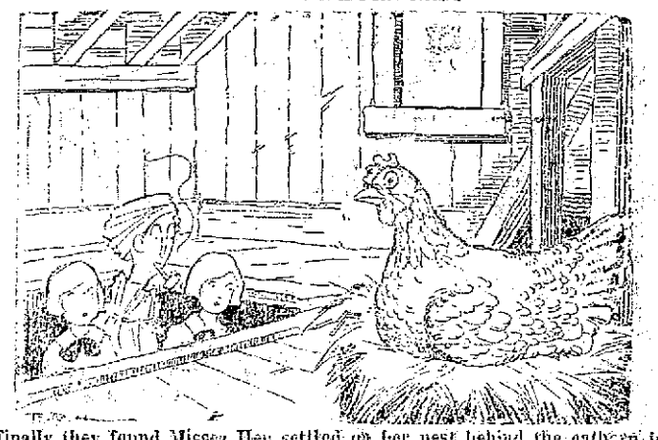
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 8—THE HIDDEN NEST



Finally they found Missez Hen settled on her nest behind the oatbarn in the barn-loft.

"Do you know, my dears, I have more trouble watching other animals in Squeaky-Moo Land put together," said little Mister Dodger, the fairyman, as he dodged under the hopstack and on again.

"What have they been doing now?" asked Nick.

"It's Missez Henrietta Hen," answered Mister Dodger. "She's got a whole nestful of eggs hidden away somewhere and she's clucking on them. I'd give anything to know where it is.

"What is clucking," asked Nancy.

"'Clucking' means setting," said the little barnyard fairy. "When she takes a notion to hatch out a family of little chicks, she hides her nest and sits on it for three weeks to keep the eggs warm. Then out pop the chicks and there you are!"

"Well, isn't that all right?" asked Nick.

"Certainly!" nodded Mister Dodger. "As right as bananas on a pine tree! If this were April or May. But it isn't. It isn't far from winter and Missez Hen certainly ought to know that baby chicks hatched now would be sure to freeze or die of whooping cough or pneumonia or something."

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Nancy.

"First, I'm going to find her nest. And then I'm going to fool her," chuckled Mister Dodger. "Come on and help me hunt."

Finally they found Missez Hen settled on her nest behind the oatbin in the barn-loft. She just sat there and looked at them without even blinking her eyes. Perhaps she was trying to pretend she was a statue or something.

"Come on children!" said Mister Dodger loudly. "Come away! And let Missez Hen alone."

The Twins were puzzled, but Mister Dodger winked mysteriously so they knew it was a part of the trick.

So they climber down the ladder and waited.

"She has to eat," whispered the fairyman. "She'll leave her nest for two or three minutes pretty soon, and when she's gone, we'll get her eggs."

And that's exactly what happened. Nancy held her apron and Nick and the fairyman put them carefully in.

And then the fairy did a queer thing. He took a glass egg out of his pocket and put it in the nest. "She'll sit on that and never know the difference!" he chuckled. "When she finds it doesn't hatch, she'll quit."

"It seems kind of mean!" said Nick.

"Not mean at all!" said Mister Dodger. "She had one nice family this year. Besides foolish people have to be managed."

Berton Braley's Poem

ENEMIES

A man should plan to live his life
Without unnecessary strife,
And diplomatically try
To poke nobody in the eye.
But though he seeks not to offend,
He can't be everybody's friend,
However carefully he goes
He's bound to step on someone's toes.

However just, however fair
His aims and ends, he'll find, somewhere
Somebody who will block his track
And try to stop or drive him back.
And if he goes ahead, then he
Has left behind an enemy.
Though she may hate acquiring foes,
He's bound to step on someone's foes.

However gentle he his smile,
A man can't do a thing worth while,
Either for others or himself
For love or charity or pelf,
Without achieving by degrees
A group of first class enemies.
Experience distinctly shows
He's bound to step on someone's toes.

Wherefore no single text on earth
Gives clearly shows a man's true worth,
Than are the foes he has acquired.
We judge his virtues or mistakes
Best by the enemies he makes.
And rest our good opinion on
The kind of foes he steps upon.

A MATCH

If love were what the rose is,
And I were like the leaf,
Our lives would grow together
In sad or singing weather,
Blown fields or flowerful closes,
Green pleasure or gray grief;
If love were what the rose it,
And I were like the leaf.

If I were what the words are,
And love were like the tune,
With double sounds and single
Delight our lips would mingle,
With kisses glad as birds are
That get sweet rain at noon;
If I were what the words are
And love were like the tune.

If you were life, my darling,
And I your love were death,
We'd shine and snow together
Ere March made sweet the weather
With daffodil and starling,
And hours of fruitful breath;
If you were life, my darling,
And I your love were death.

If you were thrall to sorrow,
And I were page to joy,
We'd play for lives and seasons,
With loving looks and treasons
And tears of night and morrow
And laughs of maid and boy!
If you were thrall to sorrow,
And I were page to joy.

If you were April's lady,
And I were lord in May,
We'd throw with leaves for hours
And draw for days with flowers,
Till day and night were shady
And night were bright like day;
If you were April's lady,
And I were lord in May.

If you were queen of pleasure,
And I were king of pain,
We'd hunt down love together,
Pluck out his fly-feather,
And teach his feet a measure,
And find his mouth a rein;
If you were the queen of pleasure,
And I were king of pain.

—Algernon Charles Swinburne.

P. T. A. Reception
Last Night

The Parent-Teachers' association reception, held last night in the new high school building for the public schools faculty, was a delightful occasion and was well attended by patrons of the schools and by teachers. The entire building was lighted up and visitors were given free rights to inspect the new building from top to bottom. Each person had his or her name pinned on so that introductions might be dispensed with. In the receiving line were Supt. and Mrs. J. W. Bradner, Mrs. Luther Burnett, Mrs. W. E. Gunn, Mrs Ed Hoe, Mrs. C. K. Brosheer, Mrs. J. H. Gibbney and Mrs. M. G. Habbard. Mis Alice Parsons served punch during the evening. The large gymnasium, where the receiving line, the program numbers, and the reception proper were held, was attractively decorated with flowers and ferns. Miss Lillian Seay, Miss Mary Skeen and Miss Winnie Pippin sang vocal solos, and Mrs. J. T. Alderson and Mrs. R. L. Maddox played several piano and mandolin numbers. Supt Bradner gave a short talk on school conditions and facilities, praising conditions as they no wexist and urging co-operation between teachers and parents.

May I help you plan your dinner for tomorrow? Sometimes after weeks of planning a woman feels she wouldn't mind cooking the dinner if she didn't have to decide what to cook.

There is usually an abundance of fruit and vegetables early in the fall, so that part's easy. And just a suggestion about the fruit. The time is coming when made desserts of dried fruits are going to be necessary, so while it's possible serve the fruit "au naturel." Add a simple cake or cookies of some sort if you want to, but plain sliced peaches and cream leave little to be desired. The last of the melons or grapes might add the finishing touch to any dinner.

Or the salad may be of fruit, and cheese and crackers might finish the dinner.

Note the menu I have devised here.

The meat, potatoes and cauliflower are all cooked in the oven. This conserves fuel on a gas stove and makes good use of the heated oven in a coal range. In the course of a year these small items are worth while.

Cream of Celery Soup

One head of celery, 2 small onions 2 sprigs parsley, 4 tablespoons rice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. 2 cups milk, 1 quart water, 1 tablespoon butter.

Chop celery, leaves and stalks. Mince onions and parsley. Melt butter in kettle, add onions and cook five minutes. Add celery, parsley and rice, cover with the water and simmer an hour. Rub through puree strained and add milk heated to the boiling point. Season with salt and pepper and serve topped with whipped cream if desired.

The Menu

Cream on Celery Soup
Toasted Crackers
Twice Baked Potatoes
Cauliflower au Gratin
Endive Salad Rolls
Sliced Peaches with Cream
Nut Cookies
Coffee

Veal Birds

Two slices veal steak cut 1-4 inch thick, 1 1-2 cups bread crumbs, 1-2 cup nut meats, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, hot water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, flour.

Trim steak and cut in small oval shaped pieces. Mix bread crumbs and nuts with melted butter. Add egg, unbeaten, and mix well. Add water to make moist enough to hold mixture together. Season with salt and pepper. Put some of the stuffing in the center of each piece of meat, pull edges together and pin with toothpicks. Roll in flour and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes, basting frequently with one tablespoon butter melted in one-half cup water.

Make a cream gravy with the liquor in the pan.

Cauliflower au Gratin

One head cauliflower, 1 1-2 cups milk, 2 tablespoonsful of flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup course stale bread crumbs, 2 teaspoons melter butter.

Remove outer green leaves from cauliflower. Put in a pan of cold salted water for an hour. Drain and cook uncovered in boiling salted water for 30 minutes. Save one-half cup of water in which the cauliflower was cooked. Drain from water and separate into sprigs. Put in buttered baking dish and cover with sauce made by melting butter, stirring in flour and slowly adding milk and cauliflower water. Stir constantly. When smooth add cheese. Cover with bread crumbs which have been mixed with the melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven until brown and serve at once.

Endive Salad

Wash and crisp endive. Chill and dry.

Cut three slices of bacon into tiny pieces and fry out fat. Remove from fire and stir in two tablespoons vinegar. Beat until well blended and pour over endive. Serve at once.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

—If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

ANTIOCH COLLEGE

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., Oct. 4.—They practice what they preach down here at Antioch College.

This courageous little institution tucked away in the quiet foothills of southern Ohio has just started on the third year of its new departure in higher education.

Headed by its president, Arthur E. Morgan, Antioch is giving the world successful culture without frill by turning out self-reliant men trained in the art of managing others through managing themselves.

Its student body, limited to 600, alternates five weeks of classroom work and five weeks of actual experience in nearby factories and industries that theory and doing may become reconciled and the individual student equipped at graduation to step into executive control of his chosen field.

Under the curriculum of "study a while, work a while," six years are ordinarily required to graduate, although competition of student may be acheved in lesser time.

"Antioch's goal is to turn out potential executives and to escape developing single-track thinkers," President Morgan informs. "We wish in no sense to avoid specialization, but rather to lay a firmer, more complete development upon which to specialize later.

"We have chosen the field of training proprietors—men who are to be employers, not employes. Such persons must have sound knowledge of men and affairs and a personality developed in foresight, caution, courage, character ,tact and initiative."

Antioch first opened its doors under the new plan in 1921 when 200 students were enrolled. Last year this number was doubled, and judging from latest application figures for entrance, matriculation this year will pribably exceed 500.

President Morgan is essentially a big man although he does not flourish with a punch nor thunder his ideas as one might except from a high powered go-get-'em type of leader.

He founded Antioch with the idea of putting some cultural background into the education of scientifically trained persons that they might be better able to cope with present changing values in all phase of living.

To put his plan over, Morgan builds first on character and then develops the student's individualism.

Antioch does not turn out made-to-order minds.

Executives who earn their own way are coming from its doors and showing the world that it's simple enough to practice what you preach provided you've been taught how.

Resuscitation

If the great public could be trained in all safety first and health principles, we could save thousands of lives every year. Emergency cases in drowning, heat stroke, asphyxiation or fainting can be easily handled if you only know what to do, and do it as soon as possible.

In drowning accidents the lungs partially fill with water. This must be expelled as soon as possible. The respiratory organs must then be artificially induced to perform their normal functions if life is to return.

The action that is generally used now is known as the Schaefer method. It is simple and effective. It should be taught in every high school.

For your own protection here it is:

Place the subject prone (face downward, turned to one side) on the ground, with a folded garment or blanket under the epigastrium (belly). Kneel athwart (across from side to side), facing the head and place your hands on each side over the lower part of the back (the lowest ribs). Slowly throw your weight forward on your arms, thus pressing down upon the thorax of the subject and squeezing the lungs so that the air is forced out of them. Then gradually relax the pressure by resuming your erect position without removing your hands from the subject's back. This permits the air to enter the chest as the ribs respond from their own elasticity.

Repeat these movements at the rate of 12 to 15 times a minute. Keep it up as long as necessary. The subject's hands rest palms down on the ground just above the head which is turned to one side. This posture allows any water in the chest to drain from the mouth.

Employees Fired Unless Save Under Thrift Plan

ABILENE, Kas., Oct. 6.—Save or get out!

This is the boiled down substance of a unique thrift plan for employes operating under supervision of Cleyson L. Brown, head of the United Light, Power and Telephone Co., here.

He compels his workers to save at least 10 per cent of their wages in safety charted investments that bring an equitable cash return.

During the first year of the plan's inauguration, employes of Brown's companies salted away more than $225,000 of their wages distributed over a variety of reliable stocks, including a 50 per cent, voluntary investment of the total, in their own employing industries.

No Save, No Pay

Brown adopted the system after research proved that large numbers of his workers were losing in efficiency because they were in debt or spent more than they earned.

To counteract this evil the position of savings director was established in the plants, and now no employe can continue drawing his salary unless he presents bona fide evidence that he has saved at least 10 per cent of the previous week's wages.

CLEYSON L. BROWN

Under the new ruling, sums applied toward getting out of debt count as savings. So does money applied as a sinking fund against the principal of a debt on a home.

Autos Don't Count

Sums invested in motor cars phonographs and hope chests, or anything else which brings no cash return, are not recognized.

As originator of the scheme, Brown has accomplished much in the way of thrift himself. When just off the farm, in the early 90's, he inherited an old water mill near this city and merged it with Abilene's then decrepid light system into a modern marvel of efficiency.

Since that time, most everything Brown touched has turned to gold, and today he is counted one of the wealthiest citizens of Kansas.

Short Coats

Short jackets and blouses of gold or silver cloth are a novelty this season and are combined with the soft wools and velvets that are so prevalent.

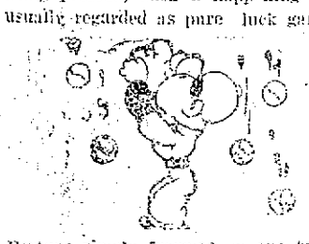
Breaks of Game Dominate Series

So evenly are the teams usually matched in the world series that the breaks of the game invariably decide the outcome.

The breaks of the game can be brought about in any number of unusual ways. Very often a dumb play in the field, at the bat, or on the bases may prove to be the turning point in an all-important game.

Many times a mechanical slip on an easy chance by a star player, who is usually most dependable, will supply the difference between victory and defeat.

When a mental or physical slip by a certain individual changes the entire complexion of the game without being pressed, such a happening is usually regarded as pure luck game.



Fortune simply frowned on one team and smiled on the other.

All the breaks in baseball, however, cannot be laid at the door of "Lady Luck." Smart baseball, plus a willingness to take a long chance, very often makes the break rather than merely has it happen.

Poor Base Running Hurt

In the 1922 world series, poor base running on a number of occasions snuffed out what seemed winning rallies on the part of the Yankees. While certain Yankee players failed to use the best of judgment with the play directly in front of them, yet smart work on the part of the Giants spurred them on to their death.

Several times with a runner on first the Yankees elected to play the hit and run. On this play the runner is off with the pitch, and it is up to the batter to try to get the ball safe by hitting through the spot vacated, since either the shortstop or second baseman will be covering on the play.

If the batsman hits safely, the chances are all in favor of the runner on first reaching third. If the team in the field lets the throw go through to third, believing there is a chance to get the runner, the batsman is very often able to go down to second on the throw. It is the duty of some player in the infield to reach a decision on the play, and if he feels there is no chance to get the runner at third, he must cut off the throw so as to prevent the batsman from reaching second.

Bancroft Tricked Yankees

Shortstop Bancroft of the Giants seemed to be the directing head of the infield. Every time the play was pulled he executed his part so perfectly that the Yankee runners felt certain the ball was going to be permitted to go through and the batsman was tickled in going to second. Then at the last possible moment, Bancroft, who appeared to be a mere spectator of the play at third, would cut off the throw and get the runner at second.

Many of the fans and experts raved at the poor base running on the part of the Yanks. Yet, after all, smart baseball on the part of the Giants opened the way to danger for the Yanks. After several games had been practically tossed away by poor work on the bases, the Giants were regarded as a lot of lucky stiffs. As a matter of fact the Giants were not lucky, they benefited as the result of smart baseball.

Unquestionably luck plays a big part in baseball. In every world series the element of luck figures. However, when dubbing some winner a lucky aggregation, don't overlook the fact that smart baseball may have made possible the breaks, that many are prone to regard as pure luck.

The successful team or player is always said to be lucky. That is rather unfair, because the successful team or player usually possesses a certain edge that creates the break which is often credited to luck. That certain edge is often due to a smart baseball team, the use of the head.

For several years after Ty Cobb joined the American League, opposing players called him the luckiest guy in all the world. When Cobb, year after year continued to show up the opposition in so many ways, the players changed their cry and gave him the credit due him. Cobb was simply outsmarting the opposition.

PUNT FOOTBALL'S GREATEST PLAY

Famous Grid Coach Tells Value of Kickoff—Advises Discretion of Use

A sound football system teaches its quarterback and captain that the punt is its greatest play, and encourages the quarter to punt when in doubt; that on every perfectly executed punt, backed up by a well-drilled team, the ball is given to the opponents in exchange for 40 yards of valuable territory.

Should the opponent's receiver prove himself a trouble maker, it is much better to kick out of bounds, but; on the other hand, should the receiver allow himself to be easily worried and tackled, it may prove profitable to encourage the punter to kick the ball as high as possible so as to increase the chances of a fumble, for which the system has prepared its ends to be on the lookout.

On defense the system teaches its quarterback to signal for a fair catch if the punt is high and the opponet's ends close, or, if he can catch it on or within the opponent's thirty-yard line, in which case the rules allow a choice between a free kick for goal and a scrimmage.

It teaches its men what to do with a loose ball, the result of a punt that is allowed to roll, and it advises the quarter when to call for an onside kick, and when to expect one from the opponent and it asks him to remind his forward which opponent they are to take, should the opponents lineup ostensibly for a kick.

The quarterback is taught when to call for a drop or place kick in preference to a running play or forward pass, how to protect the play on offense, and how to break it up when on defense.

The system should prove to the team that as a rule it is far better to kick off than it is to receive the ball at the start of the game and that a team should not choose to receive the kickoff unless seven points behind with approximately five minutes left to play.

A team guided by such a system takes less risk than one depending upon the whims and guesses of the average quarterback.

FLOSSY FACTS GIVEN BY TOM SIMS ON THE SERIES

COLUMBUS CIRCLE, Oct. 6.—If the Yanks lose this world series who do you think will win it?

I am frequently asked this question as Babe Ruth and I ramble about the big town here, separately.

Ah, who knows the answer? Who, indeed? I do! That's who!

But I promised the Giants not to tell because then their wives would run around spending the money before it is made.

All I am permitted to say at present writing is neither one of the two teams playing will fall below second place.

Even though I can't tell you this great secret, I have a big surprise for my little world series readers today.

Shut your mouth and open your eyes. Now listen:

I went out to the Polo Grounds and guess what I found? Goodly, you wouldn't guess in a thousand billion years. Well, here's what I was—I found a box of world series statistics.

The wind used in yelling at one world series game would cool the Yale Bowl half full of soup.

Breath wasted in calling the umpire a bum during any three games would talk the best looking girl in the world into kissing the ugliest man in the world.

Forty per cent of the hot grounders missed would be caught if the players missing them were knock-kneed.

If one man had the cigars smoked daily he could drop ashes on 123,456 parlor rugs. If he had the cigars smoked at an entire series he could get elected sheriff.

Cigarettes smoked during one world series game placed end to end would reach from the Polo Grounds to Denver.

The lengthy arguments about any one inning stood beside the Woolworth Building would reach 40 miles above the top.

The distance taxi drivers carry strangers en route to the game out of their way is even more distant than distant relation.

Advice given by the bleachers to the players would last a doctor 700 years or the doctor sold it instead of giving it away.

Late comers trying to reach their seats mash enough toes daily to make sausage for 80 families who really like sausage. And 47 brand new cuss words are added to our language daily by people whose toes have been stepped on.

The number of foul balls in one game that would have been home runs if the field had been turned around the other way equals how many German marks you could get for a dollar if you were so foolish.

The money spent on three world series games would buy a whole half-pint of real drinking liquor.

All the bets placed on the entire series summed up indicate the way of the bad guesser is hard.

The number of hairs turned gray while waiting to see if long flies will be caught would make enough brushes to spank a boy who had rather read a book than see a ball game.

"VENUS," HERE FRIDAY NIGHT, IN CLASS WITH FOLLIES

Geo. E. White, who sponsors 'Venus' which will be staged at the Manring theatre on Friday, October 12 has outdone any of his previous efforts in staging this attraction, which it is claimed repre-ents an investment of over one hundred thousand dollars. While his more modest efforts with "Listen Irene," "Eve" and "Shuffle Along" earned him much favor with the theatregoing public "Venus" at once places him in the front rank of American extravaza entrepreneurs, alongside of Flo Ziegfield, Chas. B Dillingham, Henry W. Savage, Geo White and the Shuberts.

Mr. Wintz has packed 'Venus" so full of magnificent features that it is not an easy task to winnow out the more important. A full sized railroad train that rolls away within the full view of the audience; a golden staircase, upon which stands Nyra Brown, with a gown ninety feet in length surrounded by her corps de beaute the Crystal Promenade de Volupte, a daring importation from the Follies Bergere; Night on A South Sea Isle are a few of the most opulent visualizations for the audience to behold.

As with former Wintz successes, Johnnie Goetz is the principal campaigner versus gloom. A new bit of satire, in which he wings nuts and noise from a balky flivver, is an episode of rare fun.

A score of delightful melody has been provided by the composers, Chas. G. Maynard and Duncan Peckham—"Venus," "South Sea Island Mood," "Girls, Girls, Girls," "Tut Tut," "Beautiful Baby," "Oh Daddy Mine," "Here's a Winter Garden Doll For You," "Click-A-Dee-Click," "A Kiss For You" and several others are among the popular numbers.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 7

ABRAHAM, A BLESSING TO THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—Gen. 12:1-3; 18:17-19; 22:15-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—"In Thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 12:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being a Blessing to Others.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Became a Blessing to the World.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Abraham, a Religious Pioneer.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Abraham, a Religious Pioneer.

I. Abraham's Ancestors (Josh. 24:2-14.

Abraham's people were idolaters. Very likely as a young man, he himself worshiped idols. Tradition furnishes us with some interesting stories touching his struggle against idolatry. At any rate, his experience was such as to well qualify him to be the head of a people whose God was the Lord. He knew how hopelessly disastrous idolatry was to the morals of the people, and, therefore, would be able to lead them back to God.

II. Abraham's Call (Gen. 12:1, cf. Acts 7:2-3).

God came to him in Ur of the Chaldees and said unto him:

1. "Get thee out of thy country." One is tied to his country with a strong bond. Abraham had lived long enough to have formed strong attachments to his country.

2. "Get thee out from thy kindred." Abraham was not only to leave behind him his native land, but his relatives as well, even his father's house. Since his kindred were idolaters, he must leave them. Abraham was to become a pilgrim, to be without a home. Even in Canaan, the only land he ever owned, was a burial place.

3. "Into the land that I will show thee" He was not told what or where the land was. He went out not knowing whither he went (Heb. 11:8). While he dwelt in tents during his earthly sojourn, yet "he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 8:10). And thus he was a typical believer called out from his family and country, and renouncing idolatry, he walked by faith testifying to his and succeeding generations to the faithfulness of God. It costs to obey God, but there is an abundant recompense.

III. God's Promise to Abraham (Gen. 12:2-3, 18:17-18).

1. The Father of a Great Posterity (v. 2). This has been literally fulfilled He was not to go out primarily for what he could get, but for what he could do. The minister and missionary forget their own personal blessings in the supreme joy of their converts who are the fruits of their labor. No name in all history equals that of Abraham in its honorable influence His is the name of honor among Jews, Mohammedans and Christians. They all acknowledge him as father.

2. A Blessing to Others (vv. 2, 3). He was not only to become great and to share God's blessings, but to be a blessing to others. He has become a blessing to countless multitudes. This is the prevailing law of the spiritual life—being blessed to be a blessing. Those who respond to this law become the very touchstone of God, so precious that God will bless them who bless them, and curse those who curse them. God makes common cause with His people. So vitally is He one with them that it is a serious thing to mistreat them. To maltreat God's children is to lift the hand against God. No one who goes against Him can prosper. Not only is this so with reference to willful acts against His children, but neglect or refusal to do good to them. Christ regards all acts for or against them as for or against Him.

IV. God Testing Abraham (Gen. 22:2-18).

Abraham's faith was shown in that he obeyed the call of God and left his land and kindred, but his faith reached its highest point in offering Isaac. For many years, he had waited for the fulfillment of God's promise as to his heir. At last that promise was a reality. Abraham's hope was not the ordinary hope which fills the heart of every father, that his name and work may be perpetuated through his son. A new nation and the world's Savior were to spring up from Abraham through this son. Through this great ordeal, his faith responded enabling him to believe that God would give Isaac back from the dead (Heb. 11:17-19). God tries all His children. The more important, the more severe the trial.

Education.

The worst education that teaches self-denial is better than the best that teaches everything else and not that. —J. Sterling.

All Make Mistakes.

The world could easily get along without the man who never makes a mistake.
